

In the Name of God, Most Compassionate, Most Merciful
Short Biography of Mohammad Khansari

Mohammad Khansari received his B.S, M.S and PhD degrees in Computer Engineering all from Sharif University of Technology, Tehran, Iran, in 1996, 1998 and 2008 respectively. He is one of the contributors of the Advanced Information and Communication Technology research Center (AICTC) of Sharif University, and the director of Iran Free/Open Source national project (formerly Persian Linux) in AICTC for five years of running the project. He had a short-time research fellowship from DAAD, Germany at IPSI-Fraunhofer research institute. He has given more than fifty invited talks on FOSS and GNU/Linux localization topics in Iran and International conferences such as United Nation Expert meeting 2004 (Geneva) and FOSS2005 (Syria), United Nation WSIS 2005 (Tunisia) and FLOSSWorld 2005 (India), LinuxAsia 2007 and IOSN summit (hosted by UNDP in India) and LinuxTag 2007 (Germany) . He is the co-author of four books with Prof. Rabiee in Free/Open Source Software topics and has more than forty papers in international conferences and journals.

His main research interests are network science and complex networks, multimedia and healthcare sensor networks, multimedia delivery over peer-to-peer networks, Free/Open Source Software specially localization, customization, mining of software repositories and diffusion. He was the faculty member and assistant professor at School of Science and Engineering , Sharif International campus located in Kish Island and then head of Information Technology faculty and faculty member of Iran Telecommunication Research Center. Currently, He is the faculty member of Faculty of New Sciences and Technologies, University of Tehran and the director of center for IT and Cyberspace of University of Tehran.